FIREMEN'S WORK IN WOODS FIRE APPRECIATED

The Bethel fire department has received the following substantial message of appreciation of their work in fighting the fire near North Pond May 22. Mr. Bates, who is president of the L. C. Bates Company of New Haven, was at his summer home in the danger area at the time, so he realized the excellent work of the fire companies and volunteers.

New Haven, Conn.
June 4, 1941

Bethel Fire Department
Bethel, Maine
Gentlemen:

I want to express my appreciation of the work that the Bethel Fire Department did recently up in North Pond in putting out fires which apparently were incendiary.

If it had not been for the prompt assistance on your part and the Bryants Pond Fire Department plus the help of a good many men I think that the results would have been disastrous.

I am enclosing a check for $25.00 which could be used in your relief work and in any other way that it should be used, in appreciation of the fine piece of work that you did.

Very truly yours,
Vernal W. Bates

The bride wore blue with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Knight is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Thurston and was graduated from Gould Academy in 1938. She attended Northeastern Business College in Portland and since then has been employed in the office of L. E. Davis.

Mr. Knight is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Knight of Rumford Point. He was graduated from Stephens High School, Rumford, and is employed by the Rumford Power and Light Company.

11 BUILDINGS BURNED IN HANOVER FIRE

Four homes were razed in a fire in Hanover village Monday afternoon, carried by the heavy wind. The first building destroyed was one occupied by Mrs. Joel Merrill and owned by Vear Bean of Bethel, near the J. B. Roberts store. From this place the fire spread to Will Swan's barn, and thence to the homes of Webster Worcester, Burdard Russell, and the buildings owned by R. Brooks Stratton and occupied by John Babineau.

From this last residence the flames spread to the property of the Hanover Dowel Co. near the river, burning the old ferry house and three dry sheds with a considerable quantity of dowels which had been saved when the rest of the dowel mill property was burned in the fall of 1939.

Near the ferry house were the new unoccupied office of the road construction operations and the old office nearby, both of which burned quickly. The records in the older building were saved by State Engineer John Boyd, who forced an entrance.

Fire spread into the woods and caused some damage in the logging operations on the land formerly owned by the Hopkins estate, where Mr. Dickson of Rumford has put up a portable mill to saw the pine.

The small pumper of the Hanover fire company rendered excellent service in preventing further spread of the conflagration. The fire departments of Rumford, Bryant Pond and Bethel were called and were on duty for some time.

Huston was arrested following an investigation by Sheriff Francis and Investigator J. A. Flynn of the State Insurance Department.

GOULD LOSES TWO MORE

Fryeburg 10—Gould 5
Gould lost another league game to their Fryeburg rivals last Wednesday, 10-5. As has been the rule in the last several games, the locals couldn't do a thing until the opponents were several runs ahead and then found their task too difficult. Clough pitched well enough in his first start in the box and might have had more success with a little sharper backing in the field.

Gorham 10—Gould 7

The Gould "Huskies" met on another rather lifeless exhibition of baseball at Gorham Saturday. Not until the home team was 10 runs ahead did the locals offer a thing in the way of resistance. Here Crockett took over the mound duties and pitched surprisingly good ball to shut out the strong Gorham batters for the rest of the way. However, the lead was too much for the Gould team to overcome even though Gorham substitutes made several errors.

Amato crashed into a tree in left field while trying to capture a long fly and suffered a shaking up. However, he recovered sufficiently to remain in the line-up and make some nice catches. Adams, playing his first full game, led the team in batting and also showed promise as an outfielder.

LIONS CLUB ELECTS

A meeting of the Lions Club was held at Bethel Inn Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected: President, F. Edward Hancorn; first vice-president, Eugene Van Den Kerckhoven; second vice-president, William C. Chapman; third vice-president, Irving L. Carver; secretary and treasurer, Ralph Young; lion tamer, Howard Thurston; tall twister, Fred Merrill; directors for two years, Hugh D. Thurston and Herbert T. Wallace. It was voted to suspend the meetings until September.

BETHEL AND VICINITY

Miss Barbara Lyon of Portland is spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Lyon.

Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Tibbets and Mrs. Laurence Lord were at Heron Academy on Monday to attend the one hundred thirty-seventh annual commencement and Alumni Dinner.

Mrs. H. P. Austin, F. E. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Valentine, and Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Wallace attended the Oxford County Association of Congregational Churches annual meeting in Upton on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jordan entertained the Methodist Church choir Friday evening at their cottage at Songo Pond. Games swimming, and boating were enjoyed and supper was cooked over the open fireplace on the shore. During the past year the weekly rehearsals of the choir under the leadership of Mrs. Mildred Lyon have been held with Mr. and Mrs. Jordan in town. The group was surprised Friday evening to find that Mr. Jordan had purchased a piano for the cottage so that rehearsals may be held there during the summer.

MANY FIRES IN STATE MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Driven by high winds uncontrolled fires destroyed woods and homes the first of the week with an estimated loss of half a million dollars. Some of the most disastrous fires were at Gardiner, where the lumber yard of the Kennebec Box and Lumber Co. was destroyed with a $200,000 loss, and woods fires at Gray and Oxford where homes were threatened.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

MAKING PICTURE-STORIES

This shot is from our "baking biscuits" sequence—the best way in the world to tell a story in pictures.

PICTURE-TAKING is a lot more fun, for the subjects, if the pictures have a story to tell. At our house, we do it this way. First, I pick two "story" ideas—one for Ann to be the model, another for Jack. Then I jot down notes for six or eight pictures that will tell each story—picking the high spots, of course.

To decide which story shall be pictured first, we toss a coin. If Ann wins, it's her story and she is the model, while Jack and I take the pictures. Actually, I suppose, I do most of it—placing the lights, setting the camera, and so on—but I try to let Jack feel that he's really the "director." We tell Ann what to do, for each shot—and usually the whole picture series is made in a short time. The following evening, it's Jack's turn as model, and Ann helps me shoot.

Sometimes we invite the next-door neighbor's little girl over, as model, so that both Jack and Ann can help supervise. She enjoys it—If my "story" idea gives her something interesting to do. We made a sequence last week, showing how she learned to bake biscuits. We pictured her measuring out the flour, kneading the dough, rolling it out, cutting the biscuits, sliding them into the oven—and, finally, taking a big bite out of the first one. It's a good story.

That outline, incidentally, is typical of our snapshot sequences. Just a step-by-step account of things the children do. Jack, building an airplane model or packing his knapsack for a hike; Ann, learning how to roller-skate, or how to make a rag doll. And they have already made one story sequence of me—loading my pipe, lighting it, sitting down with the evening paper, puffing away as I read, and finally dozing off. Pretty good pictures, too, for youngsters.

You should try this idea of snapshot sequences, if you haven't already. There's fun in it—and the pictures are more interesting because they fit together to tell a real story.

ON SUNDAY MORN, IF HEADACHES COME, - OR ANY OTHER DAY, HOP OUT OF BED AND EASE YOUR HEAD THE ALKA-SELTZER WAY.

THE ANALGESIC (painreliever) in Alka-Seltzer acts quickly because it is fully dissolved and ready to go to work as soon as you swallow it. Its painrelieving action is made more positive by alkaline buffers which protect it and speed up its action.

Because Alka-Seltzer contains an analgesic and alkaline buffer salts, it is used by millions for the relief not only of headache, but of Cold Symptoms, Acid Indigestion, Nausea, Fatigue, "Morning After" and Muscular Pains.

THURSDAY, JUNE 12, 1941

Three months ago the citizens of the Bethel Village Corporation, assembled in their annual meeting, decided that the services of a night policeman are not necessary. For three months there has been no night officer—and apparently all has gone well. So far money has been saved, but we doubt if all the Bethel village people regard it as all clear gain. True, as it happened, nothing disastrous has occurred, but may we suggest that this condition is not likely to continue. This kind of economy is like allowing your fire and liability insurance to lapse. And we know what may happen in such cases.

The history of the employment of night watchmen is well known to most of the interested parties. And our recounting of the facts, as we see them, might not agree with the recollections and opinions of all our readers. However we believe that in justice to local citizens and property owners, as well as the visitors in the locality who are entitled to reasonable courtesy at all hours, the services of a night watchman should be secured if only for the summer months.

Certain labor leaders in the United States today set themselves and their demands above the welfare and safety of the nation.

To enforce their demands, whatever they happen to be, they do not hesitate to imperil the lives, not only of the workers themselves, but of every man, woman and child in our country.

Standing behind the cloak of freedom which they enjoy in this land, they are deliberately pursuing a course which may well destroy that freedom and destroy with it the labor movement they profess to love for financial gain and power.

They dictate to government as well as to industry and the worker. There is only one force that can control them—public opinion, which eventually controls government.

The welfare of the public is today threatened on all sides by rule or ruin labor leadership.

First, our national defense is at stake.

Second, the nation's supply of coal is depleted to the danger point by strikes and threatened strikes.

Third, farm production is discouraged through increased costs the farmer cannot meet.

Fourth, the railroad workers now go the defense workers and the coal miners one better and demand a 30 per cent increase in basic wages which, if granted, would so boost living costs that the vicious circle of strikes would start all over again.

The development of little dictatorships was practiced in foreign lands until helpless people accepted a total political dictatorship which finally destroyed personal liberty and labor liberty as well.

Labor must realize that when the safety of the nation is in jeopardy, anything can happen. If the people are driven too far, they will be forced to demand a government dictatorship that will end labor dictatorship. And if that happens, the eventual result will be the destruction of the kind of freedom we have all enjoyed.—Industrial News Review.

One by one those great privileges given in the Bill of Rights to American citizens are being curtailed. The blatant effort to muzzle the broadcasting companies under pretense of applying the anti-trust law is just another step, somewhat longer and plainer than others have been. Already, anti-administration newspapers are feeling the pinch of the political machine in control through the use of some weapons provided in national legislation. It will be necessary to fight the encroachment, step by step, and difficult to foresee the outcome unless public sentiment asserts itself. — Chattanooga, Tenn., News-Free Press.

A man who can't forget is quite as bad as the one who can't remember. Everybody should remember to forget.—Elbert Hubbard.

It is pleasant to observe how free the present age is laying taxes on the next. "Future ages shall talk of this; they shall be famous for all posterity;" whereas their time and thoughts will be taken up about present things, as ours are now.—Swift.

Memory is not as brilliant as hope, but it is more beautiful, and a thousand times more true.—George D. Prentice.

"Everything comes to him who hustles while he waits."—Thomas A. Edison.

"These are critical and dangerous times. It is hoped that they will bring to us a fuller realization of the fact that liberty is more than a privilege. Two thousand years ago the doctrine of man's dignity and responsibility as an individual renewed his faith in himself and his fellow men. Today, I am firmly convinced, much of the world's trouble can be traced to the fact that we fail to remember that the advantages we now enjoy do not diminish our responsibility to society."—C. Donald Dallas, President, Revere Copper and Brass, Incorporated.

Jean Rogers as the girl, Elisabeth Risdon as the elderly adventurer in Manhattan, and Joseph Buloff and Joyce Compton are featured in leading roles.

What is advertising, anyway?

A lot has been written about advertising.

A lot of speeches have been made about it.

But the whole fact in a nutshell is—advertising is simply a TIME-SAVER.

It saves time for the man or woman who wants to buy something—and for the store or factory with something to sell.

And like most time-savers, it's a money-saver too.

ATTACK ON AMERICA

BY GENERAL ARD WHITE
W. H. U. Release

THE STORY SO FAR: More than 200,000 foreign troops which had been secretly transported to Mexico suddenly invaded the United States. Intelligence Officer Benning had discovered their plans while a spy in Mexico City where he had gained the confidence of Fincke and Bravot, two enemy officers, but

Colonel Flagwill was asleep at his desk when Benning reported at the War Department in mid-afternoon. The G-2 Chief woke with a start and vigorously shook himself into full wakefulness.

"You've certainly justified your existence again!" Flagwill exclaimed, smiling at his assistant. "We've already ordered the prompt arrest of all Andes stockholders—innocent and guilty alike. That means the biggest spy roundup in history. We can separate sheep from goats after we've arrested the whole lot. Now is no time for half measures."

Benning said, "I'm sorry Bravot got away, sir."

"He'll be a magician," Flagwill vowed, "if he gets through the nets we've laid for him."

As Flagwill turned back to his littered desk, his eye fell upon a penciled memorandum. He looked up sharply at Benning.

"I've just found another little chore for you—to sit in on a very secret party row over successor to the Presidency." Flagwill lowered his voice and spoke rapidly. "A partisan intrigue to force Senator Tannard, Secretary of State, out of the line of succession. It all hinges on the fact that Tannard received an interim appointment from the President last fall, when Secretary Hinges died. Tannard has not yet been confirmed by the Senate."

"Now, if Congress rejects Tannard's appointment, the Presidency falls by law to Judge Baucum, Secretary of the Treasury. Since Baucum is party leader and wheel horse, it is likely that a swift party coup will bring this about, as Tannard may not want to make a fight for his confirmation under all the circumstances."

On reaching Capitol Hill a few minutes before four o'clock, Benning passed the House Chamber, went downstairs, and took the tunnel-trolley across to the Senate Office Building.

The selected senators, leaders of the party in power, were just arriving when Benning reached the Baucum conference room and was admitted by a Baucum secretary. Secretary Baucum rose promptly when the door closed on the last of those he had summoned. Baucum was a large man, square-faced, straight-topped, with friendly, level gray eyes.

"Friends, I must announce that there will be a slight delay," Baucum said abruptly. His eyes ran slowly from face to face as if to test the mettle of those present against what he had to say. "I have just sent for Secretary Tannard."

Benning saw an interchange of astonished glances among those present and felt his own brows knit at Baucum's astounding announcement. Tannard long had been known as the particular political foe of Secretary Baucum.

"My reason for asking Tannard here," he said in a low, determined voice, "is I consider him the man best qualified among all of us to lead the country through our present crisis."

Senator Vren, veteran Senate leader, was on his feet. In his taut face was reflected the prevalent attachment of Baucum's institution to Tannard.

"Please be seated, sir, that I considered the majority opinion before we came here. Therefore, I speak this opinion as well as my own, when I believe you are that it is your duty to stand and call on us to raise the standard of the United States, and this by the simple method of disqualifying Secretary Tannard."

Baucum's face colored to a crimson shade, but he only shook his massive gray head.

"I appreciate the honor you pay me, Vren," he interrupted. "But we face an emergency, gentlemen, in which men are going to surrender their lives to their sense of duty."

his warnings had gone unheeded. The President was killed when Washington was bombed. General Brill, commander of the U. S. army in Texas, was opposed by greatly superior forces led by Van Hassek. In spite of Brill's desperate resistance, Van Hassek's troops pushed relentlessly forward. Returning just as Captain Boll did. That makes it very easy for me to surrender so small a thing as my personal ambition. From now on we must resolve to smash party considerations. Our national crisis is serious enough without divisions among ourselves. I must set a personal example and confess to you frankly that I am 100 old and lack the vigor and, frankly, the abilities that are needed at this time."

He paused a moment, his eyes fixed defiantly on Vren, then he went on in a milder voice.

"If your minds, gentlemen, are free of purely partisan prejudices, you will not challenge my proposal of Tannard for President. Tannard has comparative youth and vigor. As Secretary of State, while he is new in that position, he is the lawful successor, unless we disqualify him on mere technicality. He has brains and guts and he has both feet on the ground. He is the man we need to lead us in this emergency, and I intend to do everything within my power looking to his confirmation."

Baucum broke off and his eyes searched each face again as if seeking challenge to the words he had spoken. Only a stunned silence met him. His eyes lifted and a friendly smile wreathed his face as the door of the conference room opened. A tall, erect man stood at the door, gravely hesitant.

"Come right on in, Tannard," Baucum invited. He stepped forward to extend a congratulatory hand and his smile widened as he added, without formality: "I hope your heart is in good shape to stand a hard shock, Senator. But the gentlemen present wish you to serve as President of the United States. Your confirmation will be voted without serious opposition."

Tannard's alert eyes searched the room. He was a man of fifty, physically fit, appearing much younger than his age. His face was angular, strong-featured. Tannard looked the born leader of men, man of action governed by an active, orderly mind.

In his steel-blue eyes there showed no gleam of personal triumph at Baucum's announcement. His emotional response was a tightening of the muscles of his jaw, a drawing erect of his wide shoulders.

Tannard gave his answer in a measured voice.

"Very good, gentlemen, if that is your decision, I accept. Forgive me

"I hope your heart is good."

if I have no plaudits of gratitude to offer, nor promises of performance. I will say only that I deeply desire the emergency confirmation that will go down in history to the Presidency. If it is a matter of to Washington, Benning met Fincke who had come there to do espionage work for his government, but continued to pose as a friend. Benning soon unearthed the vast spy ring that was operating in this country to learn military secrets and sabotage production. Now continue with the story.

confirmed by the Senate I will do my best, and I will expect the fullest support from you and from every American. If there is nothing further, gentlemen, I'll excuse myself."

CHAPTER XV

Van Hassek's Austrian spy was on hand at the Shoreham promptly at eight the next morning. Fincke was glum and jumpy as they ordered breakfast, and from time to time cast covert glances about the dining-room.

"Why the jitters, Fincke?" Benning asked him.

The Austrian took several nervous gulps of coffee and said: "Something's gone wrong, Bromlitz. I want to get out of this town as quick as possible."

"Heard anything from Bravot?"

"No word from anybody, not since the last time I saw you. I can't figure it out, but it's there. Sometimes I think I'm being watched and G-2 has my number." Fincke pushed aside his unfinished breakfast and got up. "Come on, Bromlitz, let's get out of this town!"

Benning asked, as they took a taxicab to the depot, "Did Bravot furnish you with travel authority?"

"Last I heard it was all fixed up. All we have to do is show up at the gangplank and say, 'Passage for Amsterdam, Stateroom twelve.'"

The Austrian turned suddenly to Benning with suspicion glinting in his eyes. "Say, Bromlitz, are you asking for information, or just feeling me out?"

"Isn't it natural, Fincke," Benning retorted, "for me to satisfy myself you're really got authority to go along? I hope you're not going to spoil everything by getting suspicious of me."

"No, but after the deal I got from Boggio, you can't blame me for wondering if I'm the goat," Fincke muttered. "Sorry if I rubbed you the wrong way."

Fincke's fears relaxed somewhat when he and Benning reached New York in early afternoon.

They went to Central Park and walked about deserted paths until time to go to the pier. Promptly at four Fincke presented himself to a hulking Norwegian first mate who stood at the gangplank of the tramp freighter, a single-funnel steamer.

The Fincke formula put them on board without question. Benning noted, as they were escorted by a cabin boy to their stateroom, that the decks were deserted, no preparations to sail were in evidence.

Fincke promptly slammed the door, peeled off his cotton coat, and sprawled on a bunk.

Benning threw off his coat, lay down on his berth, and took up the late New York editions he had bought before coming aboard. Later he meant to force the issue of a reconnaissance of the ship in preparation for the Navy's boarding party.

Headlines screamed the defeat of Mole's Second Division, the capture of San Antonio.

Mole's truck column had sped his broken infantry and artillery to a new position near Austin along the Colorado River. There he was organizing a new defensive position, reinforced by Texas regiments. Van Hassek's columns were moving on Austin for prompt attack.

Van Hassek had taken over San Antonio at daylight and established headquarters in the City Hall at the Old Spanish Plaza. A subordinate, General Alvarez, had taken over the government as military governor under a decree of martial law, hauled down the American flag and hoisted the saffron flag over the city.

Alvarez caused all of Texas under his decree. A Van Hassek truck column was now on track to occupy that state, including Houston.

Art raids had started north last night. Fort Worth, Dallas, and Shreveport had been heavily pounded with the loss of hundreds of lives. Terror was sweeping other southern cities. Little Rock, Oklahoma City, Montgomery, Birmingham, even Nashville and Atlanta were within bombing range. There was no anti-aircraft now available for these cities. Thousands were fleeing into the hills and countryside.

When he had sketched through the day's news, Benning sat up and made a call at Fincke.

"What gets me," he complained, "is why we have to go all the way to Amsterdam when there's so much going on in these parts, Fincke."

Fincke snapped erect, his eyes blazing suspicion, and snarled, "You know damned well we're not going to Amsterdam, Bromlitz! What's your game—always feeling me out?"

Benning coolly drawled, "Evidently you suspect I'm a spotter for Boggio or Bravot. If that's in your mind, I resent it."

"Sorry if I blew up again," Fincke relented. "But we're playing for big game this time, Bromlitz, and you can't blame me for being touchy after what happened before."

A Norwegian deckhand brought dinner into their stateroom at six o'clock. Two empty hours followed. At eight o'clock the engines began churning, the Norwegian tramp eased out of her berth and headed down the harbor.

Fincke brightened as the ship cast off, then was attacked by a restlessness that set him pacing the little cabin.

Dusk slowly deepened into night. Benning knew that the ship was spotted by Navy observers, that they would take no chance of letting her slip out of the harbor. He chafed under his inability to break further into the Fincke confidence or to effect a survey of the ship's passengers.

The Austrian suddenly seized his cotton coat and straw hat.

"All right, Bromlitz!" he exclaimed excitedly. "It's nine o'clock and pitch dark. Here's where we move out!"

Benning followed the Austrian down the unlighted deck. There was a black huddle of figures at the rail where Fincke halted. Benning's straining eyes, now adjusted to the darkness, made out that the figures were moving over the side.

In a moment Fincke vanished. Benning hesitated, then groped his way down the Jacob's ladder. At the bottom a gasoline launch chugged tenaciously alongside in choppy water. As Benning, following the others, stepped precariously aboard, the launch cast off.

In the vague light shed by a lantern in the bow of the launch, Benning slowly counted noses. There were five passengers, two boatmen. Benning saw that the man beside whom he had found a seat was not Fincke. An intuition warned him, his eyes verified the warning as he traced out the man's profile. The passenger at his elbow was Bravot.

Van Hassek's fugitive spy master silently stared into the wet night. Benning's hand sought the pocket of his cotton coat and released the safety lock of his automatic.

THIS BUSINESS OF Living

BY SUSAN THAYER

Our Spirit of Cooperation

We all want to have a share in helping to make America strong. We know the brunt of the burden must fall on Industry which is turning out planes and ships and guns and tanks and ammunition. But we women...we housekeeping women who have no active part in Industry want to do something too. Each time the paper comes, each time we turn on the radio and hear more of the things that make us realize it is vital that America becomes invincible, we think again about our part in this great defense effort. Being women, one of the things we naturally think of is conserving.

A number of women have asked me about saving tin cans and aluminum pots and pans which might be collected and used in the manufacture of defense materials. The spirit behind such an offer of cooperation is splendid. It's the kind of spirit needed in this country today if we are to be united, as we must be, in the face of danger. But so far there is no need for this program of saving. Of course there may be fewer new utensils of certain types for some time to come and substitutes may be employed in the making of various household articles such as refrigerators and vacuum cleaners and thermometers.

Manufacturers are working on a substitute for tin cans. But there is no indication so far that the aluminum or tin we could save at home would make enough difference to defense production to be worth the effort of collection. For instance it would take 60,000 percolators to furnish enough aluminum for just one bomber!

But let's keep that spirit of cooperation alive. There's the real contribution that we women can make in these days of intense activity, as our husbands and sons become in a sense, swallowed up in the huge magnitude of our total national effort. After a while they may not be able to "see the woods for the tree." Then as Mr. W. L. Batt of the Office of Production Management says, "Is it not for you the women of America to keep a living issue in the home to make of each uncertainty, each dislocation which reaches into the life of the family, not an annoyance but rather a tangible symbol of participation in the common and worthwhile effort of our country?"

YES, LADY, we know you were well brought up. You say "Please" and "Thank you" and use the right fork and write the nicest bread-and-butter letters. But when it comes to your conduct while driving, you most definitely could learn manners from a truck driver.

Truck drivers are good drivers. They keep on their side of the road, they don't go at fantastic speeds, they practice that fundamental rule of democracy and good breeding: Give the other fellow a break.

Which is more than can be said for many of our nicest ladies and gentlemen. A strange transformation takes place when they sit behind a steering wheel. They ignore the comfort of friends riding with them. They disdain the rights of people on foot. They yell boorishly at drivers who displease them.

Many who wouldn't touch a nickel that belonged to someone else flaunt all law and order when behind a steering wheel, with the callousness of experienced criminals.

The serious part of this curious behavior is that bad manners make bad driving, and bad driving makes accidents and death.

So mend your manners and become a good citizen even when driving. It may save your life.
